Slave Schedules

Go to the Census in Heritage Quest Online.

Select "Browse" rather than "Search". (It should be right under the Census tab.)

Select Census Year: 1850 or 1860

Select State: [one of the southern states]

Select County: scroll down until you see "Slave"

Select Location: select "Slave"

You will get scans of the entire Slave schedule for the year you chose in the state you chose. Unfortunately, in HQO, there's no way to do an automated search of these slave schedules for specific names.

Darden Cemetery

By Chuck Gerdau

The Night Group of the Tuscaloosa Genealogical Society has agreed to a two-year cleaning project of the Darden Cemetery.

The earliest burial is Elizabeth Strozier Darden, who died in 1842. She was the daughter of Peter Strozier, a Revolutionary War veteran.

The Darden Cemetery is located inside Bowers Park behind the Oak Hill School. Years ago the school was the location of the Darden farm. Most of the unmarked graves are those who were residents of the county poor house formerly located on Hargrove Road near the cemetery.

Restoration of the cemetery was started in 1969 after the land around the cemetery was purchased for use as a park. The steps and walkway were made from old bricks found in the cemetery.

On Friday, September 12, 1969, the Darden Cemetery dedicated in a patriotic ceremony give by the Daughters of the American Revolution in coordination with the VFW and the Tuscaloosa County Parks and Recreation (Department).

It has been 40 years since preservation-minded people like Mrs. Irene Ayers and others put forward the efforts to save the Darden Cemetery.

Recently, Betty Jean Weaver has headed efforts for the Society to clean the tombstones. PARA has cut several of the trees in or near the cemetery. The Alabama Historical Commission has given the Society a permit to clean the cemetery.
